read the motto.

He drew from an inside pocket of his coat a fine leather purso bearing an applied gold creet on one of its corners. He threw the purso on the table in front of Mr. Wellman.

I have no desire to see it. answered Mr. Wellman, haughtily.

But I have, exclaimed Mr. Brooke.

The purse was passed over to the old lawer, who examined the creet a moment and than saked.

rer, who examined the crest a moment and then asked:

"Who gave you this?"

"Mrs. Neame," and her name was the last word Ellison stocke in the course of the trial.

Then Mr. Silleck, manager of the Manhattan Beach Hotel, was called by the prosecution. The excitable Pole, Prokasky, who testified so positively that he saw Henriques are a pistol at Ellison before the latter knocked the broker down on Thirty-ninth street, had also testified that Mr. Silleck was his best friend. Mr. Silleck was his best friend. Mr. Silleck proved the fact, although he denied the assertion, for he deliberately swore that he would inclieve Prokasky underoath, although he was jut on the stand for no other purpose than to swear that he would not.

stand for no other purpose than to swear that he would not.

Next Patrick H. Delehanty, a clerk in the District Attorney's office, suffering from a bad attack of whatever is Recorder Smyth's court room equivalent for stage fright, swore to the accuracy of the affidavit made by Dr. Hallock's colored servant Berry. The latter swore on the witness stand that he did not see Ellison strike Hanriques while the latter was down. This did not agree with his affidavit. Three policemen were next sworn, only one at a time, bowever: but their testimony did not alarm Mr. Brooke. They only asserted that Prokasky was not with Ellison was that he was with Ellison on Thirty-ninth street.

Mr. Henriques was recalled then. He identified a single barrel breech-loading Deringer, containing an empty shell, as the waspon he says he fired in the air when he was assaulted by Ellison. The weapon was passed over to the table where the defendant and his securaci sat. and Ellison examined it with a skeptical smile.

over to the table where the defendant and his counsel sat, and Ellison examined it with a skeptical smile.

Merchants Allen and Fatman, the two men who met Ellison in Jacque's restaurant at about 8 o'clock on the night of June 5, were recalled. They had notized no injury to the defendant's mouth, and Mr. Fatman had seen abrasions on his knuckles.

"That is our case," said Mr. Wellman.

Then Mr. Brooke rose to sum up for the defence. The experienced old criminal lawyer taked for three and a half hours, but he talked well nearly every minute of that time. He assaulted each juror in turn, seemingly, in the plan of his affack, and in some cases he made paleable captures, and in others apparently talled. He devoted considerable of his efforts to avert the consequence of a verdict of assault in the first degree, and endeavored to arense at least that amount of sympathy which would prevent a verdict worse than assault in the second degree if he failed to secure acquittal. When, for the sake of his argument, he assumed for a time that some of the jurors were determined to find some form of adverse verdict, Mr. Brooke worked on the fact that Ellison had already been subjected to enough unusual and, for him, cruel punishment in his three months' imprisonment in the Tomba.

ishment in his three months' imprisonment in the Tombs.

Then Mr. Brooke sought to offset the effect presumably made on the jury by the evidence as to Ellison's social relations with Mr. Henriques and his daughter.

The avidence as to the offence charged in the indictment." said he "occupied the time of their proceedings for three or four hours. The evidence, of a public scandal, which had nothing to do with this case, but which was introduced because of some hidden motive, to excite your prejudice against the defendant, took up three or four days of your time."

This same "hidden motive." to which Mr. Brooke made frequent allusions, also resulted in fixing Ellison's bail, counsel thought, at the wnusual amount of $15,000.

"Since the defendant has been incarcerated."

in fixing Ellison's bail, counsel thought, at the unusual amount of $15,000.

"Since the defendant has been incarcerated in the Tombs," he said, "no less than eight persons charged with mansiaughter or attempted manslaughter, some of whose victims are in the hospitals, some of them in their graves, have been admitted to bail in sums none of which exceeded $5,000."

In referring to Henriques's story that he fired in the air to attractationion, Mr. Brooke said:
"This unsophisticated old gentleman, this inexperienced old gentleman, this person, Henriques, expects you to believe him when, after teatilying that he has carried a pistol for railry years to protect himself from assault, he tells you that at last, being assaulted by a big brutal man, he takes a single-barrel Derringer from his pocket, and fires in the air the only shot which could afford him protection."

Later Mr. Brooke, leaning confidentially over the jury rail, said:
"When you were examined as to your quali-mean you were examined as to your quali-neation for jurors, you were asked if you were married, and if you were fathers of daughters. What—" the old lawyer stopped back from the rail and, pointing at the lounging form of Mr. Henriques, exclaimed: "What do you think of the man as a father?"

Then Mr. Brooke had considerable to say as to Mr. Henriques's excuse for allowing Ellison to continue his attentions to Mrs. Neame:
If his own story at mrs. Henriques has decorded by

If his own story is true Henriques has degraded his own daughter by allowing such a man as he names existed between the man as he names as the names existed between the defendant and Mrs. Neame. The only justification of that intimacy has been given by Ellison himself, for he has said they were to be married; but Henriques refuse to accept this one possible was an ingestion of his conduct by deliying that the state was an ingestion of miscriate. He had better have an ingestion of the state hidden (beam from the courts and from the hidden (beam from the courts and from the hidden (beam from the courts and from the has into this state. Bo you think the man who would stoop to make his daughter's scandar the only support of his testitionary would hesitate in that testimony to make of Teerjury a by-play?

when Mr. Brooke had gone this far in paying his attention to the broker the latter was all most wholly lost in the recesses of his chair.
Mr. Brooke said this in answer to Mr. Weilman's attack on winess Anson Steel, the tramp, who testined to having seen Henriques alm and fire a pistol at Ellison.

It is, possibly, unfortunate, yet such is the fact, that the not siways convenient to arrange that when an unpremediated fraces occurs. Mr. Vanderbill, distnoy Fotter, and Areabishop Corrigan shall be promptly on hand to give testimony for the facts. Nor a it possible that all training shall be prevented from witnessing smob affairs.

shat all tramps shall be prevented from witnessing smoh arairs.

Mr. Brooke made good use of the unrebutted testimony of the unimpeached witness, Prokasky, and concluded at 4:15.

Ellison followed with vivid attention every word his counsel said. His nerve has been broken by his imprisenment and trial, and the evidence of this fact was an exhibition such as most men would rather not witness.

Mr. Brooke had referred to Filison's early exreer, how he had served gallantly with a Pennsylvania regiment, in which he enlisted at the age of fourteen, and held a commission as Second Lieutenant, and how he had been desperately wounded in battle before he was fifteen years old. Then the counsel admitted that the defendant was hot-headed, and declared he was no coward; that most of the affairs which the District Attorney had characterized as cowardly assaults, were, in fact the quick blows of resentment struck in defence of women who had been subjected to rufflanly fasults.

"His defeots are admitted," Mr. Brooke said.

"His defects are admitted." Mr. Brooke said.
"but I ask if they are not the defects which may appeal to some men's manhood, and has he not suffered for them to an extent a reasonable man may be excused for declaring commensurate with his offence?"

Elison was leaning forward at this time try-ing with all his will not to display his emotion, but his hard lips trembled under his heavy moustache, his eyes filled, and tears coursed down his cheeks.

but his hard lips trembled under his heavy moustache, his eyes filled, and tears coursed down his cheeks.

It was "Biff" Ellison, the man about town, the rounder, the athlete, to be sure; but fourteen weeks in the Tombs has a curious effect on the nerves of even such a man.

Mr. Wellman was particularly bitter on the defendant in his summing up. He exceriated him from start to finish.

"He has fried to make it appear that he has perjured himself like a gentleman," Mr. Wellman said, "but he has only perjured himself like a cad. He swore faisely for the woman when he thought he could marry her, but he renounced her when he was dismissed. Lord Chesterfield has said of such men: They are liars or blackguards; liars probably—blackguards positively." And as he said this Mr. Wellman turned toward the defendant, who sat with his side to the speaker gairing at him out of the corners of his eyes.

"Thackeray has described such men in Barry Lyndon; men who lived to gain the affection of some lady, only to befray it. In the last century there were the mohocks, men calling themselves gentlemen, who went about at night insulting women and quarrelling with gentlemen; and in Shakespeare's time the protetype of Ellison was drawn in Bardolph, Pistol. Polns, and Nym, kept by Pame Quickly and Doll Tearsheet. There have been Ellisons in all ages.

to dinner before he made his charge. He began his long and exhaustive address at 7:50, in the evening session, and it was 9:40 when he concluded.

During his charge the jury listened attentively, Mr. Brooke respectfully, the defendant toyed with a hig peach, and Mr. Wellman slept peacefully.

The Recorder began by saying:

The Recorder warned the jury that they must take the law absolutely as he laid it down: for if he made any error it would be corrected by the appeliate court. They were the sole judges of the facts in the case. They must not be influenced by any opinion the Court might express, or seem to express. He added:

The inter who will go outside of the evidence to find grounds upon which to acquit or upon which to convict violates the oath that he took when he entered the jury box and the duty he was to the State. For evidence the indiction of the jury box and the duty he was to the State. For evidence the indiction of the scale box and the first indiction of the scale box of any reasonable doubt, not all imagin ary doubt. With the question of punishment the jurors have nothing to do. They are not responsible for the punishment which the Legislature has determined shall be inflicted upon those who violate the law. This defendant is entitled, as every other man is, to the necessimpting that he is innocent until that presumption is overcome by evidence that leaves no reasonable digit in your mind.

attendance for several weeks. The Recorder continued:

"If you think that any witness has testified falsely, it is your duty to determine whether the witness or witnesses had any motive for testifying falsely. If the testimony of the complainant or his daughter seems to be false, it is your duty to examine the testimony and discover if they had any motive for testifying falsely. The same rule applies to the defendant. You must look over his testimony and discover if he had any motive which induced him to testify falsely.

"Something has been said here about a man committing perjury to save a woman's reputation. This is not law, this is all talk. This man said: I committed perjury, if the jury are called upon afterward to determine his credibility, they must take that into consideration. Doubtless we may all have private opinions upon the subject, but we are sworn to regard the laws. We must discharge our duties or we will place ourselves on a plane with the person who has committed perjury. It is not necessary for me to tell you that while we are here under a solemn oath for the purpose of enforcing the laws of this State, there is no justification whatever for the commission of the crime of perjury.

"There is evidence in this case to establish the fact that shortly after the perpetration of this assault this defendant had a conversation with one or more policemen: that he had a conversation with two witnesses in Jacques's saloon; that as to the latter witnesses they testified to his saying: 'A man assaulted me; he struck me; he drew a pistol upon me and I beat him.' That evidence, if it is true, must, it seems to me, have some bear-ing, but what hearing I leave you to determine.

assaulted me; he struck me; he drew a pistol upon me and I beat him. That evidence, if it is true, must, it seems to me, have some bearing, but what hearing I leave you to determine.

"The question of whether or not this defendant acted in self-defence I leave to you to determine. I submit the case to you. The public prosecutor has endeavored to do his duty. The defendant's counsel has undoubtedly done his duty ably and to the best of his ability. All the facts bearing upon this unfortunate occurrence have been laid before you. You may render any one of these verdicts—guilty of assault in the first degree on a second offence, or guilty of assault in the second degree as a second offense, or guilty of assault in the third degree as a second offence, or guilty of assault in the third degree as a second offence, or guilty of assault in the third degree as a second offence, or coulding.

At the conclusion of the charge the Recorder declined to charge further as requested by counsel, to which the usual exceptions were taken, and then the jury were taken out in charge of court officers, and the weary wait for the verdict began.

Hugh Slevin on the Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury for the October term of the General Sessions was sworn in yesterday before Judge Martine, who appointed Edward I. Taylor, banker and broker of 30 West Eighteenth street foreman. It is a coincidence, in view of the trial of Frank Ellison before Recorder Smyth for assaulting William H. Henriques, that Hugh Slevin, the salcon keeper whom Ellison assaulted about a year ago, and for assaulting whom he was fined $250 by Recorder Smyth, is a member of the Grand Jury.

Slatemaking has now begun in earnest. The indications, it is thought, still point to the renomination of Mayor Boody. It can perhaps be taken for granted that, unless some unex pected developments take place, Mr. Boody will be nominated as his own successor, and also that Supervisor at Large George Kinkel will be renominated.

The Republican situation is much confused. owing to the absurd pretensions of the Mug-wumps and so-called Citizens' Union to control it, and the candidates will be in doubt until the convention has been held. The squabble, it is thought, is likely to result in a triangular contest for Mayor, with Mayor Friangular contest for Mayor, with Mayor Hoody as the Democratic standard bearer. Francis H. The Young Men's Democratic Club has taken its natural place this year in hostility to the regular organization, and last night it adopted a report from a committee on political inquiry and conference appointed several months ago.

The report embraced a bitter attack on the regular Democracy and the present municipal administration, and recited all the well-worn stories of scandals and alleged official short-comings. It also set forth that conferences had been held not only with all the other Mugwump organizations and Republican bodies, but even with the single tax men and the Prohibitionists for the purpose of acting as a unit in November and bringing about a political revolution.

but even with the single tax men and the Prohibitionists for the purpose of acting as a unit in November and bringing about a political revolution.

A platform was adopted, the planks of which are "new men and new methods," non-partisan" candidates for municipal effices, "home rule." and "taxes for public franchises." There was a flow of oratory during the evening and the manner in which the name of W. J. dispnor was received indicated that he is the favorite among the kickers as the candidate for Mayor.

The Committee of One Hundred, which was selected by the ten little Mugwumps, met last night at the Clarendon Hotel, but twenty-five or thirty of the men named did not respond. An organization was effected with James Mc-Keen as President, M. S. Driggs, Vice-President; Robert Baker, A. R. Moore, and Charles S. Adams, secretaries: W. H. Nichols, treasurer. A platform was adopted of the non-partisan and high sounding reform type. It was demanded that public office and political power shall not be used for private gain, and that public officers shall not use their places for private gain. All grants for franchises must be sold to the highest bidders and home rule must prevail in local affairs.

Committees on conference with the Republicans and all other bodies in antagonism to the regular Democracy were chosen.

The kings county delegates to the Saratoga Convention will number about 100, and will be quartered at the American Hotel. It will have no candidate for any State office this year. The members of the State Committee from Kings county will be James W. Ridgway, John McCarthy, John Delmar, John W. Weber, and probably Andrew W. These have been elected delegates from the eighteen Assembly districts in Kings county to the Streams Convention.

P. J. GLEASON ENDORSES P. J. GLEASON

Regular Democrats Sustain the Anti-Monopoly Candidate. Ex-Mayor Patrick J. The County Convention of his party was held in 112 Front stret, Long Island City, in the iftermoon, and the ex-boss presided with his old vim. His followers call themselves the regular Democrats. No nominations were made by the Convention, but, instead, a committee, the Convention, but, instead, a committee, consisting of one delegate from each of the seven towns in the county, was authorized to make the nominations for the Convention. Mr. Gleason says he will probably run a straight ticket.

Resolutions endorsing the nomination of Mr. Gleason for State Senator from the First Senatorial district on his anti-monopoly platform were passed with cheers. Surrogate A. N. Weller was also endorsed for Judge of the Supreme Court from the Second Judicial district. At the Gleason Convention held in Flushing William F. Cassidy of that place was nominated for School Commissioner from the First district of Queens county.

The following Gleason delegates to the State Convention were nominated last evening: Long Island City—Patrick J. Gleason, Thomas P. Burke, and Owen Woods. Second Assembly district—Otto Greeser, James Connors, and John Kelly, Supervisor Theodore Koehler was also nominated as Assemblyman from the First district, which comprises Long Island City.

Tammany's Preparations Made.

Tammany Hall will start for the Convention o-morrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock on a special train. The arrangements were completed vesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Exec yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Exec-utive Committee of the General Committee. There will be ninety delegates and ninety al-ternates. The number booked in addition to these makes the total already 45%. Each district was at first notified that ten members of the organization would be per-mitted on the train. At the meeting vesterday afternoon Col. Michael C. Murphy said that he had had more than 200 applications. Other district leaders reported from 100 down. It was decided that each district leader should be rermitted to send flifteen men in addition to the three delegates.

JUDGE ROBERTSON FOR SENATOR. He May Run Against the Man Who Turned

WHITE PLAINS, Oct. 2.- The Republican Distriet Convention of the Second Assembly district of Westehester county was held at Lafayette Hall, White Plains, to-day. The following delegates were elected without opposition: State Convention: Mayor Brush of Mt. Vernon, David O. Williams, John H. Clapp, Frederick W. Sherman, William Archer: Senate Conven-tion: James L. Hopkins, William L. Ward. Edward B. Long, Thomas B. Hodge Joseph B. See; Judiciary Convention: James H. Moran, Henry C. Henderson, Charles G. Banks, Frank

N. Glover.

The Senate delegation is composed of the most trusted lieutenants of Judge Robertson, and the fact that Judge Robertson named only the Senate delegates is heliaved to mean that he will be a candidate when the Couvention meets at the Orawaupum Hotel, in White Plains, on Wednesday, Oct. 11. The Judge announced several days ago that he was not a candidate for Senator, but it is said by his friends that he would take a unanimous nomination.

candidate for Senator, but it is said by his friends that he would take a unanimous nomination.

Other candidates who would like the nomination are ex-Assemblyman Bradford Rhodes and Col. F. A. McAlpin of Sing Sing. Rhodes, who was defeated by Senator McCleiland, says that he would have the backing of the antisnappers, and, with his own party vote, would easily defeat Assemblyman A. Hennan Morris, who will be nominated in the Democratic Convention without opposition.

Col. McAlpin, who was once defeated for Congress by ex-Congressman Stahlnecker, thinks it is a Republican year, and that he has strength in the district, without even the assistance of the anti-snappers, to defeat young Morris. Whether either of these two will be nominated is known as yet to only one individual. Judge Robertson.

It will be queer Westchester politics should Robertson run against Morris, for Henry C. Henderson is already working the Morris end of the ticket, while Judge Robertson has no more trustworthy henchman and worker than Henry C. Henderson.

The quarrel between Williams and Rosenburg arose over the latter's desire to attend the Yom Kippur ceremonies. Gen. Williams has always been considered a strict disciplinarian. Both attempted to secure control of the temporary organization, and, as a result, there was a row of the livellest sort in which the lie was passed and the delegates came to blows. The Sherift was called in to quell the riot and prevent the destruction of the hall. Neither side would yield, and two conventions were held.

Rival Candidates for Treasurer.

Senator Hill had another great congregation of Democratic visitors yesterday at the Hotal New Netherlands. The Senator will return to Washington to-day. He is in the best of health Washington to-day. He is in the best of health and spirits. One of his visitors was Mr. Delos McCurdy, the personal friend and admirer of Judge Isaac H. Maynard.

The candidates for Secretary of State and State Treasurer will not be positively known until the clans meet in Saratoga. Guesses are innumerable over them, but it is apprarent that the only contest expected will be between the friends of ex-Mayor William B. Kirk of Syrause and Hugh Duffy of Corthand for State Treasurer. Secretary Lamont is partial to Mr. Duffy, his old friend and neighbor.

Artemas Davis, at 35, Made Insano Because KINDSTON, Oct. 2.-Artemas Davis, aged 35, of Shavertown, has become insane over a love disappointment. The first symptoms of insanity were noticed a few days ago while he was attending a fair of the Horse Breeders' Association of Shavertown. He was taken to his home and confined in a room in the second story. In the night he jumped from a window to the ground, a distance of about eighteen feet, and ran wildly along the road, singing and talking in a loud manner. At about midnight he sprang from a clump of bushes where he had secreted nimeelf, and seized a horse driven by John McCune and attempted to lead the animal into the Delaware River, which flow-a short distance from the road. McCune piled the whip vigorously upon the animal, which broke away from the madman. As flow- a short distance from the road. McCune plied the whip vigorously upon the animal, which broke away from the madman. As soon as Davis's escape became known a party of men went in search of him and took him home without much resistance.

Davis fell in love with an estimable young lady living near Shavertown, but she did not favor his attentions, and after a short time repulsed him. A few years ago he fell in love with another lady, who rejected his offer of marriage, and his mind at that time was also unbalanced for a while. He will be taken to an asylum.

Slam Stres Up All Calm to the Territory on the Left Bank of the Mekong and the Islands in the River-France May Build Stations on the Right Bank and Maintain Consulates in Stamese Territory

Paris, Oct. 2.-M. Develle. Minister of Foreign Affairs, to-day received a despatch from M. Le Myre de Vilers, the French special envoy to Siam, saying that the new convention between France and Slam was signed resterday. M. de Vilers further says that the new convention includes a provision for a customs regime that is more favorable than the pre-vious treaty to commerce between the French possessions and the Siamese frontier. The text of the new treaty between France and Siam is substantially as follows:

1. Siam renounces all claim to the whole territory on the left bank of the Mekong and to the islands in the river.

2. Siam undertakes not to maintain or employ armed vessels or boats on the waters of the great Tale Sap (lake) or on the Mekong or their affluents situated in the regions specified in the arricle appended hereto. 3. Slam will not construct any fortified post of armed settlement in the provinces of Battambong and Siemreap or within a distance of twenty-five kilometres from the right bank of the Mekong.

4. Within the zones fixed by the preceding clause, police supervision will, according to custom, be exercised by the local authorities with a contingent as small as necessity will permit. No regular or irregular armed force s to be maintained. 5. Slam undertakes to open negotiations with France within six months with a view to the settlement of the customs regime in the territories specified in clause 3 and to the revision of the treaty of 1856. Until the conclusion of this agreement no customs duties will be fixed in the zone mentioned in duties will be fixed in the zone mentioned in clause 3. Reciprocity will continue to be granted by France to the products of said zone. 6. Since the development of navigation on the Mekong may necessitate certain works for the establishment of relay stations for barges and of depots for wood and coal on the right bank of the river. Siam undertakes to give every facility for such works at the request of France.

7. French citizens, whether born Frenchmen or persons enjoying French protection, shall be allowed to travel about freely and trade in the territories situate within the zone specified in clause 3, upon providing themselves with permits from the French authorities. Reciprocity shall be observed in regard to the inhabitants of said zone.

8. France reserves to herself the right of establishing Consulates wherever they may be deemed advisable in the interest of her citizens, whether subjects or dependents, and especially at Korat and Nuang-Nam. Siam shall code to France the territory necessary for the establishment of said Consulates.

9. The present treaty must be ratified within four months of the date of signature.

STARVING ENGLISH MINERS. Many of the Strikers are at Last Resuming

LONDON, Oct. 2.-Work was resumed in the collieries at Bolton, Lancashire, this morning. Six thousand of the coal miners in Yorkshire. who went on strike on July 25 last, also re sumed work this morning.

Among the many manufacturing towns that have keenly felt the shortage of coal caused by the great strike of the miners, are Sheffleld. eeds, Bradford, Nottingham, and Derby. Notwithstanding the failure of the efforts to bring about a general settlement of the dispute, the Mayors of those towns decided that something should be done by them, in the interests of the businesses that are threatened with heavy losses to bring the fight to an end. A meeting of the Mayors was held to-day, and it was resolved that they should invite delegates of the

DYNAMITERS STILL BUSY.

Discovery of Eight Badly Made Bombs Whose Fuses Had Heen Lighted.

BARCELONA, Oct. 2.-Though the police for two weeks have been more than usually active in pursuit of Anarchists some of that brotherhood are still at work. The town of Villanueva y Geltru, twenty-five miles from this city, is the scene of the latest Aparchist exploit.

While a policeman was patrolling the streets there to-day he found, near the house of a magistrate, eight bombs, apparently powerful enough to blow the house to pieces. were attached and the ground bore traces of their burning, but the bombs were badly made, and did not explode. The discovery caused much excitement. The police are looking for the authors of the outrage.

A large number of Anarchist circulars have been scattered about Catalonia. The police have not discovered the printers or distributers of the circulars, though they have been spread broadcast in liarcelona, iteus, Manresa, Lérida, and other well policed towns. The circulars predict that dynamite outrages will soon be renewed to avenge Pallas, now under sentence of death.

TRIED TO KILL A CARDINAL.

Caplica Confesses His Guilt and Says Cardl

BUDAPEST, Oct. 2.—The trial of Caolies on the charge of attempting to kill Cardinal Vaszary. Primate of Hungary, began here to-day. The prosecution showed that the prisoner, prior to April last, had been a cellarman in the Cardinal's palace here. He was discharged, and, wishing to be taken back, prepared a petition addressed to the Cardinal. The Cardinal was ignorant of the case, and when Caolics presented the petition he told the man that he must consult his household officials before must consult his household officials before giving an answer.

This enraged Cselies, who drew a carving knile and attempted to stab the cardinal. The latter's secretary, the liev Medurdus Kohl, sprang upon Cselies and prevented him from striking the Cardinal, but was himself stabbed five times. The noise attracted the attention of Chaplair Vargabuda, who summened aid, and Cselies was overpowered.

The man, who is about 40 years old, has a wife and several children. He said in court to-day that he was guilty, and expressed the deepest repentance. He added that Cardinal Vaszary had forgiven him and had heaped coals of fire on his head by supporting his family while he was in prison.

BISMARCK VERY DECREPIT.

It Is Doubtini If He Ever Fully Recovers Hin Health. KISSINGEN, Oct. 2.-It is doubtful if Prince Bismarck will ever recover his usual health and strength. His progress toward recovery has been again retarded by the entire failure of his appetite. He will now scarcely touch food. The reports that he suffered an attack of paralysis are borne out by the fact that his right hand is apparently completely useless. He salutes with his left hand, and is even compelled to sign his name with that hand. He has aged in looks very much since his sickness, and in appearance is very decrepit.

It is impossible for him to enter or leave his carriage without assistance, and whenever he goes driving two men servants help him in and out of the vehicle. The Prince, complains that he is afflicted with pain day and night. Altogether he is much broken.

Count Herbert Bismarck, the Prince's son, says that his father's iliness was brought on by his taking a half hour's bath when the temperature was 28 degrees Reaumur, and afterward standing bareleaded for fifteen minutes receiving the deputation from Frankfort that visited him on Aug. 27. compelled to sign his name with that hand.
